

Celle

Celle – ducal residence and Europe's largest collection of half-timbered buildings

A city of culture, charm and elegance – yet with all the dynamism of this day and age. Quite unique, boasting over 450 houses under a preservation order in the old town alone, most dating back to the 16th, 17th, and 18th century. Not to mention the palace, the burial vault of the Guelph princes, “The First 24-Hour Art Museum” in the world containing the Robert Simon Collection, as well as the Bomann Museum, Lower Saxony's third largest museum, in addition to many other highlights. For holiday-makers and visitors to the Lüneburg Heath Celle will be an unforgettable experience on their journey – a paradise for strolling about, sightseeing, shopping and savouring its delights. Simply Germany's most beautiful city.
